ateObject("MyApp.MyComp")
I'm doing NSString *docPath =
[[NSBundle mainBundle]
pathForResource:@"myApp"
ofType:@"MyComp"]; if (docPath == nil) { // do something
} and it works. But I don't want to use "MyApp.MyComp" as a file name on disk, and it seems to be a "registration" issue to me. Do I need to register
"MyApp.MyComp" to use it? If I delete "MyApp.MyComp" from disk, the above code will work.
Any ideas? Thank you. A: It's not a registration issue, but a memory allocation issue. `NSBundle` allocates memory for you when you create a file from it. It will make a copy of the file if necessary. If you explicitly want to open the "comp" file directly, you can do so by creating an `NSURL` with no file extension:

NSString * docPath = [NSBundle mainBundle].mainURL.path; if (docPath.pathExtension == nil) { // do something }
